If you watched the second series of The Great British Sewing Bee, you may have been charmed by the 1930s blouse made in Episode 6.. Tamara's blouse in muted, natural colours particularly evoked the era for me. When I found out that the publishers Quadrille had made many of the patterns from the series available for free download from here, I printed out the pattern and took a sneaky peek at ...

This dress is one of the nicest sewing patterns I have found on the internet. Its a really interesting looking dress that comes originally from the Great British Sewing Bee series; a short dress or tunic with a slight tulip shape that comes in towards the knees. It has integrated pockets and a front pleat at the top from the neckline.
